

September

Blessings ! Let me share with you a little bit of September here in Panama.

Graduation

Our kids just finished their first discipleship classes, so we thought we should do something special for them. We decided to invite their families so the kids could show to their parents what they have been learning during these classes and that we may have an opportunity to recognize their effort. We didn't have a lot of parents but we continually pray for them and for more opportunities to share with them about Jesus. Now they all started new discipleship classes where they have new challenges, one of them is to memorize all the names of the books of the Bible. We already have great response from them as some already memorize all the Old Testament books.

Back to classes

In Panamá, the school years runs differently. The kids had this month as a recess from school. During those days a lot of the kids go to visit their families in other parts of the country with their parents.

It also has been raining more than usual and that has made it a little more difficult for us to work in the places we usually do. Even with those step backs, we have seen that the tutoring classes we have had, have been opening door for us with the community. It has been an area where we can not only help with the kids' homework, but also get to know them better, have conversation with their families and share with them about Jesus.

Mexican Dinner

In Mexico September is the month of national holidays, in Panama that month is in November, however, we wanted to use this as an excuse to share a meal with friends we are trying to reach and continue to create friendship bonds. We invited some friends from the local churches in the city and new friends from Carrasquilla (the area we are working).

Special Visit

This month my brother was in Panamá for a week for his job, but he was able to spend the weekend afterwards. We had the chance to visit the place we work in the mission, and also some of the most interesting places in the city. We had a really great time and I especially enjoy that week. He was sent here because of his work for the very first time, but we know that God places everything with a purpose.

Join us in prayer

Pray for the people that we are disciplining (children and adults) and also that God continues to open door for un in the community.

Gracias

For supporting us with you love , prayers and donations.
